Dealer notes

Zoom Classic Cars presents this 1967 Pontiac Catalina 2-Door Sport Coupe Garage Find Project. Here is an interesting opportunity for the Pontiac enthusiast or classic car restorer seeking a distinctive piece of 1960s American automotive history. This 1967 Pontiac Catalina 2-Door Sport Coupe is a genuine garage find that was reportedly fully restored in 2008, driven very little afterward, and then put away in a garage, where it has remained untouched for nearly 18 years.Showing 69,936 miles on the odometer, this Catalina retains its attractive period styling, clean interior, and solid body structure. While it is certainly not a turnkey driver or a mint-condition collector car, it offers an excellent foundation for someone willing to recommission a classic Pontiac and bring it back to the road. The exterior paint remains in very good condition overall, although a noticeable dent in the driver\'s-side rear quarter panel as shown will require repair. The body presents well for a long-stored project, and the car\'s overall solidity makes it an appealing candidate for further restoration or careful preservation. Inside, the Catalina is exceptionally clean and well preserved. The seating surfaces have no rips or tears, and the interior remains complete and attractive. There is a crack in the passenger side of the dashboard, consistent with the age of the vehicle. The trunk is also very clean, with no obvious evidence of rodent or pest activity reported during storage.Under the hood, the car is believed to have originally been equipped with a 400-cubic-inch V8 featuring a two-barrel carburetor. During the reported 2008 restoration, the carburetor setup was upgraded to a four-barrel configuration. The engine has not been started or turned over since the car was put away, and its current mechanical condition has not been verified. The battery is dead, and old fuel remains in the tank. Undercarriage of the car appears solid with surface rust evident. Car is equipped with single exhaust. Important Note: This Catalina is being sold as a non-running project and must be thoroughly inspected and recommissioned before any attempt to drive it. After nearly 18 years in storage, expect comprehensive mechanical work, including inspection and servicing of the engine, fuel system, brakes and brake lines, cooling system, tires, electrical components, and other safety-related systems. The brake drums are currently frozen or seized and the tires are flat preventing the car from rolling freely in neutral. The sale also includes a collection of additional parts: Original factory carburetor,"' and-new Holley carburetor,• Air intake and top mount, New side mirror, Extra set of classic hubcaps. Important Pickup Information: The car is currently parked inside a garage with its front end positioned beneath a house-extension overhang, preventing the hood from being opened until the vehicle is moved outside. Because the brake drums are seized, the Catalina cannot simply be rolled onto a trailer. The buyer must arrive prepared with a trailer equipped with a winch, wheel dollies, or suitable recovery equipment to safely extract and load the vehicle. Please plan accordingly. This 1967 Pontiac Catalina is best suited to an enthusiast who appreciates the full-size Pontiac\'s distinctive styling and is looking for a worthwhile restoration or recommissioning project. Its reported restoration history, clean interior, attractive paint, and solid overall condition provide an appealing starting point for the next owner. The car is sold as-is, in its current non-running condition. The sale is part of an Estate Sale and comes with a clean title is in hand along with appropriate legal paperwork for easy transfer.
