Dealer notes

The 2017 Ford Edge Titanium AWD arrives with a documented service history and personal vehicle use, which means this is the Titanium someone actually chose, fully loaded and kept properly, not a fleet spec that found its way to the market. The 3.5L Ti-VCT V6 paired with a 6-speed automatic with SelectShift and AWD delivers the smooth, confident power delivery that makes the Edge Titanium feel more substantial than the segment typically offers, and the cold weather package with engine block heater means Midwest winters never change your plans. White Platinum Met Tri-Coat over Ebony performance leather is a pairing that looks expensive because when this Edge was new, it was. Settle into the Ebony performance leather interior and Equipment Group 302A reveals what nearly nine thousand dollars in options actually buys. Heated and cooled front seats, heated rear seats, a panoramic vista roof, a 180-degree camera with split view, rain-sensing wipers, remote start, auto-dimming driver sideview mirror, deep tray-style all-weather mats, 20-inch premium polished aluminum wheels, HID headlamps with automatic high beams, illuminated sill plates, a Sony audio system with 12 speakers, and an 8-way power driver seat with memory create a cabin where every detail was resolved before you even asked the question. The hands-free liftgate, LED signature lighting, and bright beltline molding carry that same premium intent to every exterior touch point. Voice-activated touchscreen navigation with Sync 3, BLIS blind spot information system, enhanced active park assist, lane-keeping system, remote keyless entry, reverse sensing system, SiriusXM, a Class II trailer tow package, and a universal garage door opener round out a Titanium that was spec'd to cover every scenario of daily ownership without compromise. A personal-use Edge Titanium with this equipment, this service history, and AWD is the kind of well-kept Titanium that buyers who have cross-shopped this segment recognize as the one that was actually cared for. Come see it at Carlux in Waukegan and discover what a fully loaded Edge Titanium feels like across Chicagoland.
