Dealer notes

Zoom Classic Cars is proud to offer this exceptionally well-preserved 1981 Buick Riviera Landau Coupe showing just 61,279 original miles. Originally sold new by the Ruff Buick dealership in Tupelo, Mississippi, this Riviera spent virtually its entire life in the South before making its way north, helping preserve its outstanding originality and exceptionally solid condition. There was a time when Buick represented the perfect balance between American luxury, comfort, and understated prestige, and few cars embodied that philosophy better than the elegant 1981 Buick Riviera. Beautifully styled, exceptionally well-appointed, and engineered to provide effortless highway cruising, the Riviera remained one of General Motors' premier personal luxury coupes during an era when comfort and craftsmanship were paramount. Finished in its beautiful light blue factory paint complemented by a dark blue heavily padded Landau vinyl roof, this Riviera presents as an outstanding example of Buick's flagship personal luxury coupe. The paint is believed to be original and retains an excellent shine throughout, with only one very minor imperfection on the hood that is barely noticeable and shown in the photographs. Every body panel is solid, straight, and aligns beautifully, while the chrome bumpers, stainless trim, moldings, emblems, and Buick badging remain complete and in excellent condition. Open the long doors and you'll find a luxurious blue velour bucket seat interior that is remarkably well preserved. The plush seating offers exceptional comfort, while the full-length center console provides convenient storage and a comfortable front armrest. Rear passengers are equally spoiled with a folding center armrest and factory rear courtesy lighting that reinforces the Riviera's upscale character. The elegant woodgrain dashboard remains in beautiful condition and houses the factory instrumentation, digital clock, and original Delco AM/FM cassette stereo. Thick carpeting, rich fabrics, and quality materials throughout the cabin remind you why Buick earned such a loyal following among luxury car buyers. Power comes from the optional and highly desirable 5.0-liter (307 cubic-inch) Buick V8, paired with a smooth-shifting automatic transmission. This combination delivers effortless cruising, dependable reliability, and the quiet ride that made the Riviera famous. Factory equipment includes: * Optional 5.0L (307 CI) V8 Engine, * Automatic Transmission, * Power Steering, * Optional Four-Wheel Power Disc Brakes, * Tilt Steering Wheel, * Power Windows, * Six-Way Power Driver's Seat, * Factory Air Conditioning, * Cruise Control, * Digital Clock, * Delco AM/FM Cassette Stereo, * Center Console with Storage, * Front Bucket Seats, * Rear Center Armrest, * Rear Courtesy Lighting, * Whitewall Radial Tires, * Factory Steel Wheels and * Beautiful Chrome Locking Wire Wheel Covers. Mechanically, this Riviera starts easily, idles smoothly, and delivers the kind of relaxed driving experience that made Buick famous. It runs, drives, shifts, and handles exceptionally well, with the quiet highway manners expected of a premium American luxury coupe. The underside is impressively clean and solid, reflecting its years spent in the South. The trunk is equally well preserved with clean carpeting, the factory spare tire with cover, jack equipment, and original accessories all neatly in place. One of the highlights of this Riviera is its outstanding documentation. Included with the sale are the original owner's manual, original factory build sheets and a copy of the original window sticker, providing excellent provenance for collectors and enthusiasts alike. A Brief Riviera History - Introduced in 1963, the Buick Riviera quickly established itself as one of America's most elegant personal luxury automobiles, competing directly with the Ford Thunderbird, Cadillac Eldorado, and Chrysler Cordoba. By 1979, Buick introduced the dramatically downsized sixth-generation Riviera, offering improved fuel economy while retaining the luxurious appointments and refined styling buyers expected. Approximately 26,300 Rivieras were produced for the 1981 model year, making these cars considerably less common today than they once were. Because many were used as everyday transportation rather than preserved as collectibles, finding a low-mileage, highly original, well-documented Southern example in this condition has become increasingly difficult. Today, these Rivieras are gaining renewed appreciation among collectors who recognize their distinctive styling, exceptional comfort, impressive originality, and growing rarity. They represent one of the last truly traditional American luxury coupes before the industry shifted toward smaller front-wheel-drive platforms later in the decade. If you've been searching for an exceptionally original, low-mileage American luxury coupe that has been carefully preserved and beautifully maintained, this documented 1981 Buick Riviera deserves your attention. Whether displayed at local cruise nights, enjoyed on weekend drives, or added to a growing collection of preserved American classics, this Riviera offers timeless style, outstanding originality, and the effortless luxury that made Buick one of America's most respected automobile manufacturers.
