The 6.8L gasoline V8 produces 405 horsepower and 445 lb-ft of torque, paired with a 10-speed TorqShift-G automatic transmission and Four-Wheel Drive. An electronic-locking rear differential with a 3.73 axle ratio provides additional traction when needed. The FX4 Off-Road Package includes off-road shock absorbers and skid plates. Factory towing equipment includes trailer sway control, a trailer brake controller, and a trailer hitch receiver. The Crew Cab features durable vinyl seating, air conditioning, power windows and locks, and a 4.2-inch productivity screen. Factory options include a power-sliding rear window with defrost, a 120V/400W outlet, and a Camper Package with heavy-service front suspension. The XL Driver Assist Package is factory-installed, while standard safety equipment includes AdvanceTrac with Roll Stability Control, four-wheel anti-lock brakes, and a rearview camera. Cruise control, remote keyless entry, and steering-wheel-mounted controls add convenience. The CARFAX documents five service history records, including repeated oil and filter changes and an August 2025 brake service involving front pads, rotors, and brake calipers. Additional records show tire replacement in September 2024 and replacement of the front wiper blades in November 2025. For buyers needing a long-bed work truck with four full doors, this F-250 offers useful factory equipment for commercial operations, property maintenance, and demanding everyday tasks. Frequently Asked Questions Q: What is the advantage of the 8-foot bed? A: It provides room for longer building materials, equipment, and supplies. Q: What does the electronic-locking rear differential do? A: It allows the rear wheels to rotate together when engaged, improving traction when one wheel might otherwise slip. Q: Does this truck have a factory trailer brake controller? A: Yes. The integrated controller provides adjustable braking assistance for compatible trailers equipped with electric brakes.
