Dealer notes

Zoom Classic Cars presents this 2003 Harley-Davidson CVO Screamin’ Eagle 100th Anniversary Road King with only 2.145 original miles, this limited production Centennial Gold bike features the 103CI Screamin’ Eagle V-Twin and 5 Speed transmission. Here is an extraordinary opportunity to acquire a remarkably low-mileage example of one of Harley-Davidson’s most significant modern factory customs. This 2003 Harley-Davidson CVO Screamin’ Eagle 100th Anniversary Road King has just 2,145 original miles and celebrates the Motor Company’s historic centennial year in spectacular style. With its distinctive Centennial Gold paint, Vivid Black and Burgundy accents, special anniversary badging, and powerful 103-cubic-inch Screamin’ Eagle engine, this is a highly collectible motorcycle that stands apart from an ordinary Road King.The 2003 model year marked Harley-Davidson’s 100th anniversary, celebrated with special-edition motorcycles featuring unique styling, commemorative details, and premium factory equipment. The Screamin’ Eagle Road King was part of the Custom Vehicle Operations (CVO) program, Harley-Davidson’s factory-custom division, which brought together exclusive paint schemes, upgraded powertrains, extensive chrome, and carefully selected accessories.Production of the 2003 CVO Screamin’ Eagle Road King was limited to approximately 3,600 motorcycles, making this a desirable anniversary model for Harley-Davidson enthusiasts and collectors.At the heart of this special Road King is the air-cooled, 103-cubic-inch (1,690cc) Screamin’ Eagle Twin Cam V-twin, featuring electronic fuel injection and a five-speed manual transmission. Factory specifications list approximately 100 lb-ft of torque at 3,500 rpm, delivering the strong low- and mid-range power, unmistakable exhaust note, and classic Harley-Davidson character enthusiasts expect from a large-displacement V-twin.The combination of traditional Road King styling and the larger Screamin’ Eagle powerplant made this CVO a particularly special motorcycle when new. It offers the substantial presence of a classic Harley touring machine with the exclusivity and performance enhancements of a factory-built limited edition.The motorcycle’s signature Centennial Gold finish is complemented by Vivid Black and rich Burgundy accents, creating one of the most recognizable color combinations of the 2003 anniversary lineup. Special graphics and commemorative details distinguish it from a standard Road King, while extensive chrome highlights the engine, primary, rocker boxes, air cleaner, and other carefully finished components. Additional anniversary features include the 100th Anniversary tank-console badges, a commemorative rear-fender medallion, and special instrumentation. The silver-face speedometer is complemented by a matching billet-style mini tachometer bearing 100th Anniversary identification, adding another distinctive detail to the cockpit.The CVO specification also includes special wheels, premium trim, and factory-custom details that contribute to the motorcycle’s unmistakable appearance. This is a very special Low-Mileage Collector Motorcycle: With just 2,145 miles, this Road King offers an appealing opportunity for the enthusiast seeking a low-mileage example of Harley-Davidson’s centennial-era CVO program. Its limited production, special factory color scheme, 103-cubic-inch Screamin’ Eagle engine, and anniversary-specific details give it a strong collector identity. The 2003 CVO Screamin’ Eagle Road King was one of two CVO models offered for that model year, alongside the Screamin’ Eagle Softail Deuce. The Road King’s blend of touring heritage, distinctive factory customization, and commemorative significance makes it particularly appealing to collectors of milestone Harley-Davidson models. A motorcycle with such low indicated mileage deserves to be evaluated not just as transportation, but as a collectible piece of Harley-Davidson history. Its mileage, documentation, mint condition and originality make it an especially interesting prospect for the discerning enthusiast.
