Dealer notes

The 2021 Dodge Challenger GT AWD arrives with no accidents reported on CARFAX and a documented service history, and in Smoke Show, it doesn't ask for attention, it simply commands it. The 3.6L V6 24V VVT with a dual stainless-steel exhaust and chrome tailpipe finishers announces its presence before you see it in the mirror, a sound that belongs to a different era of American muscle and somehow still stops conversations on a 2021 platform. AWD means this Challenger doesn't just look fast in winter, it actually is, which makes you the type of person who drives a muscle car year-round in the Midwest and never once apologizes for it. Slide into the black interior and the power sunroof, Uconnect 4C Nav with 8.4-inch display, SiriusXM satellite radio, multi-zone automatic climate control, perimeter approach lights, and the Driver Convenience Group create a cabin that wraps pure American muscle car identity in enough daily comfort to make this your only car, not just your weekend car. The 245/45R20 performance tires, projector beam headlamps, front fog lamps, LED brakelights, and body-colored everything give the exterior a clean, menacing cohesion that no add-on kit can replicate because it came straight from the factory this way. Cargo area concealed storage and a 60/40 folding rear seat prove the Challenger GT is more practical than it has any right to be. The 8-speed automatic transmission, engine oil cooler, and AWD drivetrain make this GT as proven on a cold February morning as on a dry summer Saturday, which means the only thing standing between you and driving it every day is the decision to finally buy it. A Smoke Show Challenger GT with AWD, a service history, and a clean accident record at this mileage is a combination that muscle car buyers who know this platform recognize immediately as the one that got away if they wait too long. Come hear it for yourself at Carlux in Waukegan and feel what it does to Chicagoland pavement on a test drive.
