Dealer notes

1948 Austin Custom Hot Rod Burnout Car. This unique custom build features a flip-forward fiberglass front clip and is powered by a big block Chevrolet engine. It is most notably known from Cleetus McFarland's YouTube channel and was owned by Brittany Atwood, wife of Roman Atwood—both well-known YouTube personalities. We had plans to use this vehicle for burnouts, wheel stands, and other content, but with our spring and summer schedule already fully booked, we've decided to let someone else enjoy this one-of-a-kind ride. Be sure to check out the attached video for a full walkaround. The car is currently running and starts right up; the GM big block sounds great. While it could use a few upgrades here and there, the overall appearance is solid, and the engine seems strong—one of the main reasons we purchased it, along with its cool and unique character. This is a turnkey unit that includes a few extra tires, and we can assist with transportation. With its online popularity and standout presence, this car is not only a fun, affordable toy but also a piece of internet automotive culture. Price does not include $0 processing fee
