Dealer notes

The 2022 Volkswagen Atlas Cross Sport 3.6L V6 SE 4Motion AWD arrives with no accidents reported, one owner since new, and a documented service history, a combination that is genuinely difficult to find on a two-row SUV that drives this well. The 3.6L VR6 DOHC 24-valve engine with FSI direct injection and start/stop system delivers the kind of broad, effortless power that makes highway passing and on-ramp merging feel like non-events, channeled through an 8-speed automatic and Volkswagen's 4Motion all-wheel drive for confident traction in every season the Midwest throws at it. Pure White over Titan Black is a pairing that looks sharp, ages well, and turns heads without trying, which is exactly the Atlas Cross Sport's personality in a sentence. Settle into the Titan Black interior and the Cross Sport SE rewards you with a cabin that feels more European than the price point suggests. Adaptive cruise control with Stop and Go, multi-zone automatic climate control, an 8-way power driver seat, a 120V AC interior power outlet alongside three 12-volt outlets, deep tinted glass, projector beam LED headlamps with auto-leveling, cornering lights, front fog lamps, and black bodyside cladding with chrome window trim create an environment that is equally at home on a Tuesday morning commute and a Saturday drive up to Wisconsin. The two-row Cross Sport layout gives you a longer cargo area than the standard Atlas without sacrificing the driving dynamics that make this VR6 worth choosing over a four-cylinder alternative. HD Radio, smart device integration, Bluetooth audio streaming, a 6-speaker system, and a fully galvanized steel body structure round out a package built with both daily pleasure and long-term ownership in mind. An engine oil cooler and the VR6's proven durability give this powertrain real staying power well beyond the miles already on it. A one-owner Atlas Cross Sport V6 with AWD, full service history, and a clean accident record at this mileage is the kind of well-kept European SUV that informed buyers move on before the rest of the market catches up. Come see it at CarLux in Waukegan and put the VR6 through its paces across Chicagoland.
