Dealer notes

1994 Chevrolet Silverado OBS Step side Monster Show Truck. This 4x4 beast has been an ongoing project that has literally just been completed to 100% perfection. This is not an old-school show truck " this is a freshly finished build, the culmination of nearly 20 years of work by some of the best and most extremely talented hands in the industry. It sits on 49" Super Swamper IROK tires mounted on Weld Racing wheels and features an SAS (Solid Axle Swap) suspension with 1-ton differentials and disc brakes front and rear. The build includes a custom tubular subframe, high-steer system with hydro assist, color-matched paint and powder coat, Jet-Hot coating, and chrome galore. The fully outfitted interior features custom seats, console, specialty shifter, rear speaker display, and amps. And the coolest part " as you rarely see a step side done to this level " the body and paint were finished to absolute perfection, top to bottom. The floor pans and underside of the truck are just as nice as most people's show-quality paintwork. This was a full frame-off build, with every nut, bolt, and fastener replaced and/or upgraded along the way. Under the hood sits a crate small block that sounds incredible through a custom exhaust system. It also features front and rear driveshafts, dual-reservoir Fabtech shocks at each wheel, plus four additional custom-mounted shocks on an axle truss hoop across the rear. A custom-built removable tubular bumper overlay system and steel cowl induction hood finish off the aggressive stance. The list truly goes on and on. The retail value of this build " parts, labor, and time " would be well into six figures. The best part? This vehicle has not been seen publicly until its completion within the last 30 days. No social media posts. This truck has been a complete secret throughout its decades-long build process. We are not posting this unit for sale; we are solely interested in trades. Interests would include high-end classics, square bodies, or exotics. For the time being, we will be keeping it in our showroom as a conversation piece and taking it to select local shows.
