Dealer notes

This 1948 Plymouth Hemi-powered street rod is an exceptional, high-dollar build that offers far more than meets the eye, finished in what appears to be a striking Lamborghini-inspired orange metallic pearl that absolutely pops in person. The car features an upgraded suspension with four-wheel disc brakes, delivering confident drivability to match its serious performance. The interior is beautifully executed with comfortable leather seating, an automatic transmission, and a fully integrated Vintage Air conditioning system, making it just as enjoyable to cruise as it is to admire. Under the hood is the star of the show—a Jack Tant Racing HEMI engine, professionally built and tuned mild enough for the street while still delivering the unmistakable power, sound, and prestige that only a true HEMI can offer. Realistically, the engine alone represents a significant portion of the asking price, not to mention a total build investment that easily exceeded $100,000 when accounting for the bodywork, paint, interior, drivetrain, and countless custom details throughout. The only change one might consider is a different wheel setup to fully tailor the look to personal taste, but otherwise this is a turn-key, dialed-in hot rod that was built right from the ground up. This Plymouth is a serious street machine with show-quality presence, and we strongly encourage watching the detailed video on our YouTube channel or calling directly with any questions—this is a special car that deserves a closer look.
